Dear Miatta,

Thank you for the early notice of your Written Ministerial Statement today and for the very helpful letter which we will publish today.

I am pleased that the Government sees warm homes as a priority and is announcing the ways in which it is seeking to help people to find more affordable ways to keep their homes warm that do not also damage the environment. Home heating will be one of the more intractable problems in delivering our carbon emission targets.

The ESNZ Committee, which I Chair, is having an evidence session on warm homes on 4 December which will seek to build on the work of the Committee in the last Parliament. I invite you to come to Committee that day to speak to this policy to my Committee colleagues. I am sure you understand the value of committee scrutiny of Government policy and will ensure that any conclusions the Committee draws from the session on 4 December are properly informed from a Government perspective.

I look forward to your early response.

Kind regards,
