Eleventh Report of Session 2026-27

HC 172-xi / HL Paper 65

The Court and Tribunal Fees (Miscellaneous Amendments) Order 2026 and The Court and Tribunal Fees (Miscellaneous Amendments) (Change of Coming Into Force) Order 2026

The Poole Harbour Revision Order 2026

The Housing Benefit (Earned Income Disregards) (Amendment) Regulations 2026

Joint Committee on Statutory Instruments

The Joint Committee on Statutory Instruments (JCSI) is appointed to consider statutory instruments made in exercise of powers granted by Act of Parliament. Instruments not laid before Parliament are included within the Committee's remit; but local instruments and instruments made by devolved administrations are not considered by JCSI unless they are required to be laid before Parliament.

The role of the JCSI, whose membership is drawn from both Houses of Parliament, is to assess the technical qualities of each instrument that falls within its remit and to decide whether to draw the special attention of each House to any instrument on one or more of the following grounds:

- i. that it imposes, or sets the amount of, a charge on public revenue or that it requires payment for a licence, consent or service to be made to the Exchequer, a government department or a public or local authority, or sets the amount of the payment;
- ii. that its parent legislation says that it cannot be challenged in the courts;
- iii. that it appears to have retrospective effect without the express authority of the parent legislation;
- iv. that there appears to have been unjustifiable delay in publishing it or laying it before Parliament;
- v. that there appears to have been unjustifiable delay in sending a notification under the proviso to section 4(1) of the Statutory Instruments Act 1946, where the instrument has come into force before it has been laid;
- vi. that there appears to be doubt about whether there is power to make it or that it appears to make an unusual or unexpected use of the power to make;
- vii. that its form or meaning needs to be explained;
- viii. that its drafting appears to be defective;
- ix. any other ground which does not go to its merits or the policy behind it.

The Committee usually meets weekly when Parliament is sitting.

Instruments reported

At its meeting on 14 October 2026 the Committee scrutinised a number of instruments in accordance with Standing Orders. It was agreed that the special attention of both Houses should be drawn to four of those considered. The instruments and the grounds for reporting are given below. The relevant departmental memoranda are published as appendices to this report.

1 S.I. 2026/642 and S.I. 2026/665: Reported for failure to comply with proper legislative practice

The Court and Tribunal Fees (Miscellaneous Amendments) Order 2026 and The Court and Tribunal Fees (Miscellaneous Amendments) (Change of Coming Into Force) Order 2026

Procedure: Made negative

- 1.1 The Committee draws the special attention of both Houses to these Orders on the ground that they fail to comply with proper legislative practice in one respect.
- 1.2 These Orders amend certain court and tribunal fees. The two instruments are connected in that the sole operative provision of the second instrument (S.I. 2026/665) is a change to the coming into force date of the first instrument (S.I. 2026/642) from 6 July 2026 to 13 July 2026. The first instrument was laid before Parliament on 19 June 2026 and so, at the time of its laying, breached the 21-day rule by coming into force 17 days after it was laid. The second instrument was laid on the same day, to come into force on 5 July 2026 (thus amending the first instrument before it came into force) and therefore also breached the rule. The Committee noted that the Explanatory Memoranda to both instruments referenced these breaches, and explained that these were a result of the Government deciding to “allow further consideration of the package of fee changes and their commencement date”, thus delaying the laying of the instrument. The intention of the second instrument was, therefore, to ensure that Parliament and the public had the full 21-day period to consider the changes introduced by the first instrument before they came into force. This explanation was repeated in a letter from the relevant Minister to the Committee, which also apologised for the breach and committed to reviewing how similar situations could be avoided in the future. The Committee asked the Ministry of Justice whether it had anything further to add to the explanation provided in the Explanatory Memoranda and the letter.

- 1.3 In a memorandum printed at Appendix 1, the Department reiterates the explanation provided previously. The Committee is grateful for the Department's explanations and its commitment to reviewing how similar situations can be avoided in future. The Committee also notes that the Department's intention was to comply with the spirit of the 21-day rule, through the amendment made to the coming into force date of the first instrument. However, the consequence of what appears to have been a late reconsideration of the policy intention (given that it was apparently the laying of the first instrument that was delayed, not its actual making) is that two instruments have now been made in breach of the 21-day rule. While the Committee acknowledges that Departments are entitled to reconsider their policy positions and that some breaches of the rule are unavoidable (see paragraphs 2.18 to 2.22 of its First Special Report of Session 2019-2021 (Transparency and Accountability in Subordinate Legislation)), these circumstances cannot be characterised in that way (being instead the result of an apparent late reconsideration of the Department's plans after the first instrument had been made) and the Committee accordingly reports both these instruments for failure to comply with proper legislative practice, acknowledged by the Department.

2 S.I. 2026/724: Reported for defective drafting

The Poole Harbour Revision Order 2026

Procedure: Made negative

- 2.1 The Committee draws the special attention of both Houses to this Order on the ground that it is defectively drafted in one respect.
- 2.2 This Order modernises and consolidates the statutory harbour powers relating to Poole Harbour. Article 39(4) adds new article 29A to the Poole Harbour Revision Order 2012 (S.I. 2012/1777). That new provision grants the Poole Harbour Commissioners power to levy charges on specified non-ship vessels using the harbour. It further provides that sections 30 and 31 of the Harbours Act 1964 (the “1964 Act”) apply to charges under article 29A as they apply to charges levied under section 26 of that Act, “with all necessary modification”. Noting the Committee’s comments in relation to such a formulation in its Fifty-second Report of Session 2024-26 in respect of S.I. 2026/62 (and, in particular, the acknowledgment in the Department for Transport’s memorandum to the Committee in relation to that instrument that setting out modifications expressly may assist the reader), the Committee asked the Department to explain what “necessary modification” to sections 30 and 31 of the 1964 Act was contemplated by article 29A, and why any such modification was not set out expressly in the Order.

2.3 In a memorandum printed at Appendix 2, the Department attempts to distinguish this case from that in S.I. 2026/62. The Department asserts that the only modifications required to sections 30 and 31 of the 1964 Act are those “already stated in article 39(4)” of this instrument, and thus it was considered superfluous to “restate this modification” to each section. The Committee disagrees. While the express effect of the drafting of article 29A is to apply sections 30 and 31 to charges levied under article 29A, the “necessary modification” to those sections (which would at the least be to modify the various references to the charges within those sections – but could extend further than that depending on what is intended or required in the specific context) is not set out expressly in this instrument. That is, in fact, the same situation that the Committee took issue with in relation to S.I. 2026/62, contrary to the Department’s assertion that the cases are different. The point is that in neither case are the modifications to the provisions referenced set out for the user of the instrument.

2.4 Notwithstanding the argument made by the Department in its memorandum, the Committee notes that the memorandum concludes with a final paragraph that appears to accept that this form of drafting may be an issue, because it accepts that setting out the modifications expressly may assist the reader. As the Committee set out in its earlier report, it agrees with that position: effective drafting should not leave readers of legislation guessing and in a position where they have to fill in the gaps. If the effect of article 29A was considered sufficiently clear, arguably the reference to “necessary modification” in this instance is superfluous and as such has the potential to create rather than remove confusion. The Committee accordingly reports article 39(4) of this instrument for defective drafting, acknowledged in part by the Department.

3 S.I. 2026/753: Reported for defective drafting

The Housing Benefit (Earned Income Disregards) (Amendment) Regulations 2026

Procedure: Made negative

- 3.1 The Committee draws the special attention of both Houses to these Regulations on the ground that they are defectively drafted in six linked respects.
- 3.2 These Regulations update the amounts of earned income that may be disregarded in the means-testing of housing benefit, where the claimant is resident in supported housing or temporary accommodation. The Committee received a voluntary memorandum dated 1 September 2026 on this instrument from the Department for Work and Pensions, which is printed at Appendix []. That memorandum explained that regulation 2(4) of the instrument contained six drafting errors which meant that that regulation failed to implement the Department's policy as had been intended. The memorandum also set out the Department's intention to make and lay a second instrument to correct the mistakes, and to investigate how the drafting mistakes had occurred. Noting the content of that memorandum, and the Department's commitment to investigate how so many errors arose in the course of drafting the instrument, the Committee asked the Department to explain how the instrument had come to be made in that defective form.
- 3.3 In a further memorandum printed at Appendix 3, the Department explains that the errors were identified at the implementation stage, and arose from a combination of oversights and drafting errors. The Department notes that the instrument had been through the normal checking and quality assurance processes, explaining that the existing legislation that this instrument amends is very complex, being itself a consolidation of heavily-amended earlier legislation and containing provisions that now have limited practical effect on very small legacy cohorts. The Department also advises that its internal statutory instrument checking processes have recently (and independently of the issues that arose with this instrument) been further strengthened.
- 3.4 The Committee welcomes the Department's open and early engagement on the issues it identified relating to this instrument, and is grateful for both its explanation of how the various errors arose and the speed with which they have been addressed (the correcting instrument having been laid before Parliament on 7 September 2026, correcting the errors in this instrument before it comes into force). The Committee also acknowledges the complexity of legislation in this area and welcomes the Department's commitment to ongoing improvements in its processes to ensure high-quality drafting of secondary legislation. However, given the number of errors in this instrument, the result of which was that it did not correctly implement the Department's intended policy, the Committee reports regulation 2(4) of this instrument for defective drafting, acknowledged by the Department.

Instruments not reported

At its meeting on 14 October 2026 the Committee considered the instruments set out in the Annex to this Report, none of which were required to be reported to both Houses.

The Court and Tribunal Fees (Miscellaneous Amendments) Order 2026, The Court and Tribunal Fees (Miscellaneous Amendments) (Change Of Coming Into Force) Order 2026

1. The Committee has asked the Ministry of Justice for a memorandum on the following point(s):

Does the Department have anything to add to its explanation in paragraph 11.1 of the Explanatory Memoranda accompanying these instruments, and in its letter to the Committee dated 19 June 2026, as to why they both breached the 21-day rule?

2. The Department is grateful for the Committee's consideration of these instruments and for providing the opportunity to add further explanation. The Department does not have anything to add to its explanations given to date for why these instruments breached the 21-day rule. As set out, the then Deputy Prime Minister and Minister of State for Courts and Legal Services decided to further review the package of fee increases contained within the Court and Tribunals Fees (Miscellaneous Amendments) Order 2026, including when they should come into force. To ensure Parliament, the public and stakeholders had at least 21 days to consider the fee changes, the Court and Tribunal Fees (Miscellaneous Amendments) (Change of coming into force) Order 2026 was laid to amend the coming into force date for these changes to 13 July.

Appendix 2: Memorandum from the Department for Transport

S.I. 2026/724

The Poole Harbour Revision Order 2026

1. The Committee has asked the Department for Transport (“the Department”) for a memorandum on the following point(s):
 - i) what “necessary modification” to section 30 and 31 of Harbours Act 1964 is contemplated by new article 29A(1) (inserted by article 39(4) of this Order), and*
 - ii) why those modifications are not set out expressly in the Order (noting that in relation to a similar issue on S.I. 2026/62 the Department accepted that “it may assist the reader to set out the modifications expressly should the circumstances arise in future orders”).*
2. The Department respectfully informs the Committee that the responsibility for the consideration of the application and the making of any harbour revision order passed to the Marine Management Organisation (MMO) by virtue of the Harbours Act 1964 (Delegation of Functions) Order 2010 (S.I. 2010/674) which delegated the Secretary of State’s functions under Section 14 of the Harbours Act 1964 (c.40) (Ministers’ powers, on application of harbour authorities, or others, to make orders for securing harbour efficiency) to the MMO except in relation to specified applications. This memorandum has therefore been prepared by the MMO in conjunction with the Department.
3. In response to point (i) above, the only modifications required to sections 30 and 31 of the Harbours Act 1964 are those already stated in article 39(4) of the Poole Harbour Revision Order 2026 (i.e. sections 30 and 31 of the Harbours Act 1964 are to apply in the same way to “charges other than ship, passenger and goods” dues levied under article 29A of the Poole Harbour Revision Order 2012 as they do to ship, passenger and goods dues levied under section 26 of the Harbours Act 1964). The Department had considered that the modifications were not set out expressly in the Order as it was considered superfluous to restate this modification to each section in the article, given the already existing wording of article 29A.

4. In response to point (ii) above, this instance contrasts with the position in respect of SI 2026/62 (The Lyme Regis, Bridport (West Bay) and Weymouth Harbour Revision Order 2026), where the Department can confirm that in relation to the “power to appropriate” article (which does not appear in the Poole Harbour Revision Order 2026), the ‘necessary modifications’ are now set out in respect of all future HROs containing that article as the modifications are more than a restatement of what is already in the HRO article.
5. However, in view of this point being raised by the Committee, the Department accepts that it may assist the reader to set out the modifications expressly should the circumstances arise in future orders.

Appendix 3: Memorandum from the Department for Work and Pensions

S.I. 2026/753

The Housing Benefit (Earned Income Disregards) (Amendment) Regulations 2026

1. The Committee has asked the Department for Work and Pensions for a memorandum on the following point:

Noting what is said in the Department's voluntary memorandum dated 1 September 2026 to the Committee in respect of this instrument, and in particular the commitment to investigate how so many errors arose in the course of its drafting, explain how the instrument came to be made in that form.

2. The Department acknowledges that S.I. 2026/753 contains six errors and has now investigated how these errors arose. The errors were a combination of oversights and drafting errors. We have proactively acted to correct these errors as quickly as possible by way of a corrective S.I. made and laid on 7 September 2026 (S.I. 2026/978) which will come into force before S.I. 2026/753 does.
3. The Department repeats its apology. The Department does take quality assurance of its S.I.s very seriously and, in line with our procedures at the time, S.I. 2026/753 had been through sequential independent checks at differing levels of seniority and experience.
4. The Regulations being amended, the Housing Benefit Regulations 2006 (S.I. 2006/213), are complex and have been amended many times. The 2006 Regulations were themselves a consolidation of the Housing Benefit (General) Regulations 1987 (S.I. 1987/1971), which had been amended around 200 times by the time of the consolidation. In certain respects, they contain detailed provisions of extremely limited practical effect e.g. the provisions relating to polygamous marriages reflect a very small and diminishing legacy cohort as immigration law has restricted the formation of polygamous households in the UK. We flag this not as an excuse, but simply because it is relevant context that increases the likelihood of errors arising. Ultimately, the errors have arisen because of human error and oversight.

5. Please note that independently, the Department has already made improvements to the S.I. checking process that have been implemented after the time S.I. 2026/753 was drafted and checked. We have increased the coaching available at the initial drafting stage, before an S.I. is sent to policy colleagues for comment. This should also help to identify any issues in the S.I. at a much earlier stage.
6. In this case the errors were spotted at the implementation stage. Our investigation concluded that improvements can be made to the procedures which check the practical effect of the S.I.. This is particularly so where the S.I. amends a complex existing framework which covers a very wide range of different people. Checks can be made of the detail behind the way the changes impact on people and to assist with that, worked examples and household scenarios can be used. Such checks would help to test the S.I. against a wide range of real-world claimant cohorts.
