30 June 2021

Dear Angus,

NEGOTIATIONS ON THE UK'S FUTURE TRADING RELATIONSHIP WITH NEW ZEALAND - UPDATE

I am writing to inform you and your committee that today, I am making a Written Ministerial Statement to update Parliament about the fifth round of negotiations towards a UK-New Zealand Free Trade Agreement.

The fifth round took place between 8-16 June 2021. New Zealand's Trade and Export Growth Minister Damien O'Connor also visited the UK from 16-18 June for face-to-face talks. Both countries have agreed to accelerate negotiations to finalise the details of the deal with the aim of reaching agreement in principle.

Both countries are committed to agreeing a high quality, comprehensive free trade agreement that supports jobs, broadens consumer choice, and provides more opportunities in key industries such as services, digital trade, and the green economy.

Strong progress was made in agreeing key issues across the deal including provisionally closing a further four chapters:

- Government Procurement chapter, which improves Small Medium-sized Enterprises' (SMEs') access to procurement and the integrity of supply chains.
- Disputes Chapter, which establishes mechanisms to promote and enforce compliance with the agreement and ensures that state-to-state disputes are dealt with consistently, fairly and in a cost-effective, transparent, and timely manner. It gives businesses and stakeholders certainty that the obligations under this agreement will be upheld.
- Transparency chapter, which underscores the rule of law as the major cornerstone of good governance, outlining agreed expectations for the UK and New Zealand to be transparent, open, and accessible to UK businesses, with respect to this trade agreement and their respective regulatory environments.
- Trade and Gender Equality chapter, which recognises that women are underrepresented in international trade, and aims to support women exporters, business owners, and entrepreneurs to participate in global trade.

On June 14, we exchanged updated goods market access offers, building on the previous offers exchanged in the prior two rounds; these discussions remain ongoing.

Excellent progress was made during round five on the following chapters, which the UK and New Zealand agree now have a clear path to closure:

- Rules of Origin
- Digital
- Telecoms
- State Owned Enterprises
- Consumer Protection
- Good Regulatory Practice
- Labour
- Development
- Anti-Corruption
- Initial & Final Provisions
- General Exceptions
- Institutional Provisions

In previous rounds, chapters on SMEs, Competition, Remedies were provisionally closed. The UK and New Zealand both remain eager to make further progress, with the UK clear that momentum needs to be maintained across the whole agreement. Ahead of the next round, scheduled for July, negotiating teams will share further proposals and discuss a range of issues in intersessional meetings.

The Government has been clear that any future deal with New Zealand must work for UK consumers, producers, and companies. Throughout the process the UK will continue to engage stakeholders to ensure their views inform our approach to negotiations. Any deal the UK agrees will be fair and balanced and in the best interests of the whole of the country. We remain committed to upholding our high environmental, labour, food safety and animal welfare standards in the deal, as well as protecting the National Health Service (NHS).

The Government remains fully committed to transparency and will ensure that parliamentarians, UK citizens and businesses have access to information on our trade negotiations. We will make the next statement on progress following the sixth round of talks.

Best wishes,

THE RT HON ELIZABETH TRUSS MP
Secretary of State for International Trade
& President of the Board of Trade
