D1 To what extent do you support the right of people to take strike action if their working conditions are worsening?

1634 respondents in total took part in the NUS Insight Student Opinion survey in February 2023. 36% of the respondents are Further Education students and 64% are in Higher Education. The survey is promoted to the NUS Nationbuilder database, with a prize draw of £150 offered.

When asked to what extent they support the right of people to take strike action if their working conditions are worsening, over three quarters of students say they support strike action; over half say they very much support it.
